

ANTI-TUBERCLE ORDINANCE.

The Phoenix Board of Health's Recommendation to be incorporated into Law.

At a meeting of the city health board at the city hall last night the question of the adoption of measures for the protection of natives from infection by tubercle bacilli was one for careful deliberation and much discussion and the board fixed on three important regulations, two of which will be embodied in the form of an ordinance which the ordinance committee will receive from the city attorney and submit to the city council.

The first section of the ordinance will provide for the disinfection of rooms when vacated by tubercular patients. The second clause is a new idea for the protection of public health. It provides that second hand dealers, including those who buy and sell not only furniture, but clothing and many other articles, shall register certain lines of goods upon making a purchase—an ordinance similar to that regulating the registration of articles received in a pawnbroking establishment—although, of course, it is imposed for another reason. According to the decision reached last night the articles must be fumigated, and a penalty will be attached to a failure to comply. The class of goods to be registered include clothing, carpets, bedding and upholstered furniture.

The third regulation will be in the form of an amendment to the ordinance commonly known as the "spitting ordinance." Not only the sidewalks, but public grounds and places will be put under quarantine against spitting. The plan of placing cuspidors or receptacles on the street corners and in public grounds was abandoned as impracticable, at least at present.

The matter of framing the ordinance is now in the hands of the city attorney and the city health officer and is not likely to be placed before the board of health again. The health board last night was a unit in reaching conclusions. The members had given the business before them a great deal of thought before meeting, and their theories for the public health probably will be endorsed by the city council. The health board includes a majority of the members of the council, Mayor Talbot and Councilmen McNeil and Shott, besides City Health Officer Hughes and City Attorney Ballard.—Republican.

Arizona's Petrified Forest.

The geological survey is about to issue a pamphlet containing a report on the petrified forest of Arizona by Prof. Lester F. Ward of the National museum. In this report Prof. Ward recommends that prompt steps be taken to withdraw from entry the land embraced within the forest, and the Denver Republican says that it is probable that a bill following the line of this recommendation and including the land within a government reservation will be introduced at the approaching session of congress.

This forest, which is situated near Holbrook, a station on the line of the Atlantic & Pacific railroad, is one of the wonders of the United States. It consists of an enormous amount of petrified timber, the fallen trunks of trees belonging to a remote geological age. There are three distinct parts. The nearest to the railroad embraces several sections of land over which are scattered sections of numerous tree trunks. One of these, known as the Chalcedony bridge, is about four feet in diameter. It spans a deep gully. This bridge is unstable and should be supported to prevent the destruction of a remarkable natural curiosity.

The second forest, covering several hundred acres of land, is about four miles south of the first one and resembles it in many respects. The third and largest contains thousands of petrified logs. In some cases there are entire trees, with limbs and branches unbroken. The bark on some of the trees, although as hard as stone, is said to look as natural as if it had been cut but a short time before.

There is no question that these deposits should be preserved from acquisition by private persons. The entire forest area should be included in a national reservation or park, for although it would require many years to cart away all the petrifications, the chief objects of interest and beauty could be removed or marred. The danger has been increased by the establishment of a new railroad station called Adamana, within some six miles of the nearest deposit, thus making the locality more accessible than it was before.

Life Restored by Lightning.

A press dispatch from Larned, Kan., dated August 13, says:

At the town of Hanston, twenty miles west of here, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McPrease died, or seemed to die, Sunday morning. Funeral services were held yesterday. On the way to the cemetery the metallic casket was struck by a bolt of lightning and split open. Thereupon, to the amazement and consternation of the funeral party, the child sat up and called for her mother. The horses were knocked down, but no other damage was done. The little girl is in a fair way to recovery. It is believed she was in a cataleptic state, from which the shock of lightning aroused her.

People living in the vicinity of Hanston, who were in the funeral procession, tell many strange stories in connection with the occurrence. Some of them say that just prior to the flash of lightning, a peculiarly soft, mellow light appeared in the sky, which was so pronounced in its difference from sunlight as to attract attention and occasion comment, and that while the peculiar atmospheric or light conditions were being discussed the clap of thunder and the flash of lightning revived their attention upon the strange scene which followed.

What is thought to be one of the strangest features of the remarkable occurrence and which strengthens the belief of those who contend that it was a manifestation of the divine power, is that nobody was killed or even seriously hurt by the lightning.

Mr. and Mrs. McPrease are well-to-do ranch people, who live in the vicinity of Hanston. They have three other children, two girls and a boy. They were raised in the Catholic faith, but have not been church attendants for several years, as there is no Catholic congregation in their neighborhood.

Charles derived little good from his visit to Sunday school, yesterday. After dinner mamma missed a small pot of jam and as she noticed some tell tale evidences about Charles' mouth and hands she asked him if he had seen or eaten the jam. Charles insisted that he had not even seen the jam. Papa, thereupon, was called in and Charles was punished severely. Drawing Charles close to her and wiping the tears from his eyes, mamma said:

"When I was your age, my boy, I never told a falsehood."

"How old were you before you began?" asked Charles between sobs.

White Sails.

The sails are brown and rough and sore.

As long as we can see them here. But when afar upon the main, We lingering turn and look again, White as the wing of sea bird swift, Or new fallen snow's unsullied drift, So we with those our hearts hold dear, Dwell side by side and year by year, And faults and frailties recognize, Albeit we see with lenient eyes. But the day comes that seemed afar, With orders sealed they cross the bar! Then, to us watching from the shore, Their sails are white forevermore.—Mary Johnson in Boston Transcript.

Just the Same.

Bobby—Mamma, if God is as good as you say he is, why doesn't he always answer our prayers?

"He does, Bobby, when they deserve to be answered."

"Well, I prayed that I might not steal any more jam out of the butter's pantry, but it didn't make any difference."—Life.

A Cure for Cholera Infantum. "Last May," says Mrs. Curtis Baker of Bookwalter, Ohio, "an infant child of our neighbor's was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctor had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days the time the child had fully recovered and is now (nearly a year since) a vigorous, healthy girl. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail in any single instance." For sale by H. C. Hitchcock.

Clifton-Lordsburg Base Ball Game.

The game of ball between the Clifton and Lordsburg nines was called at 2 o'clock. There was a strong feeling of rivalry between the two teams. Clifton won the last game by one tally and Lordsburg was determined to redeem herself. Both teams had been materially strengthened since they had last met, and both were enthusiastically backed by their home people. Both teams were in perfect condition and the friends of each put up their money at a 2-2 gait. The air was full of "long green."

For the first three innings not a score was made on either side, and it certainly looked like it was going to be the game of the season, but in the fourth the Lordsburgers began to weaken and Clifton got in three runs. From that time on it was Clifton's game. By the end of the first half of the eighth it commenced to rain, and the game had to be called off to the seventh. McGrath was the only man of the Lordsburgers who made a score. On the Clifton side Wilson scored in the fifth and seventh. Patterson scored twice in the fifth and once in the sixth. Brown scored in the fourth and twice in the fifth. Rose scored fourth. Gray scored in the fifth, Parks scored in the fifth and sixth. Foster scored in the fourth, fifth and sixth. Bridwell scored in the fifth and sixth. Herzke scored in the fifth, sixth and seventh. Five scores were made in the first half of the eighth, one each by Rose, Gray, Parks, Foster and Herzke. At the end of the seventh the score stood 1 to 20 in favor of Clifton.

Clifton played the seven innings with but one error. It was the best game she ever put up. The team was greatly strengthened by its new battery, Gray and Parks, who did magnificent work from start to finish. The Lordsburgers took their defeat without a murmur. They are a gentlemanly lot of boys, and with a few changes on their infield, and a little practice they would soon put up an interesting game. They are outclassed, that is all.—Era.

A SLEEP-WALKER'S FEAT.

Guided His Watchful Companions Over Perilous Paths in Perfect Safety.

An interesting case of somnambulism is reported by M. Badaire, director of the normal school at Blois, France. It is accredited by Dr. Duany and printed in the Proceedings of the Society of Physical Research, writes Dr. R. Osmond Mason, in Ladies' Home Journal. Therophile Janicard was a pupil at the normal school, and in the month of July of his second year he commenced to walk in his sleep. On one occasion he got up in the night, determined to go fishing. His brothers-in-law, M. Simonet, decided to accompany him, but before starting he succeeded in inducing him to alter his plans and go and visit a relative, instead. Accordingly this was done, Janicard remaining fast asleep and undisturbed by the barking dogs or the fatigue of a long walk. Finally he was ready to return, and on the way, coming to a narrow and dangerous path close to the river, his brother-in-law cautioned him to go carefully in the darkness. Janicard, with some scorn, declared that he could see the better of the two, and to prove it asked Simonet if he could see the match under his foot, and sure enough, there was the match. It was a dark night, and besides Janicard was some 30 feet ahead of him and had his nightcap drawn closely over his face.
